Sunday seemed to be a general day of pleasure for the French people and the river was completely lined below Schulz's by these merry people. The best brands of French wine were on tap all day and fishing was the popular amusement.

Raveloe's speed on the Monmouth Park track seemed to take the breath out of the Eastern horsemen. His time for a mile was 1:39 1/4, beating Racine's by one-fourth of a second. He is a Pacific Coast horse, and was originally owned by Theodore Winters.

An exchange strikes a local aspirant to office a blow under the belt by telling him that "a man who is resting easily beneath the spreading branches of his own obscurity should not mistake the buzzing of the flies for a call to go forth and run for office.

Cattle Dying.

Twenty head or more of fine cattle have died on the river bottom in the past few days. Whether the deaths are caused by a weed nibbled by the stock, or to a poisonous insect, has not been fully ascertained, and stockman are undecided in opinions. Of the 100 head of thorough Herefords brought from Stillwater by Russell & Bradley, several have succumbed to the poison, whatever it is, but that the mortality is due to a poison of some kind is evinced by the symptoms. Cattle men are rushing their herds to the mountains to avoid additional losses.—Central Nevada.

FARMING BY ELECTRICITY.

Experiments Showing the Beneficial Effects of the Fluid on Plants.

The application of electricity to agriculture has long been discussed. N. Specnew has described the latest experiments in Practical Electricity. In one series he uses seeds of haricot beans and Winter and Spring rye. The seeds were soaked, electrified and immediately sown. The plants were more developed, their leaves were larger and their color brighter than those grown from non-electrified seed, but their yield was not affected.

In another series of experiments plates of copper and zinc about two feet by two feet six inches were buried at the ends of plots and connected by their upper faces, the effect being to establish a current through the earth. The result was manifested by a larger crop and by the growth of vegetables of enormous dimensions.

In the third series, electrical collectors were mounted on insulated rods and connected by wires, the effect being to obtain a highly electrified atmosphere. Seeds of rye, corn, oats, barley, peas, clover, potatoes and flax were used. The form of electro-culture increased the yield of seed an average of one-half, while the ripening was more rapid. It was also found that potatoes grown by electro-culture were rarely diseased, and the beneficial effects of electricity on vines attacked by phylloxera have already been observed. It is possible that a new means is at hand of combatting the microscopic pests which attack vegetable growth.

Convenient Matrimony.

Hy. Doane, the County Clerk, issued licenses yesterday to three gypsies. Later in the day a couple appeared at the office of the Justice of the peace and made known their wants in gypsy dialect to the effect that they wanted to be joined in the bonds of holy wedlock.

Justice Hawthorne assumed a solemn air and whispered a few words to George Meyers and Constable Sterns, both of whom repaired to the ante-room to spruce up, and finally appeared on the scene as best man and bride's-maid. Meyers had readjusted his neck-tie and brushed his hair, while Sterns, as bride's-maid, appeared with a Sunday dress of the late Lottie Carson.

The high contracting parties accompanied by their right bowers came to the scratch with a firm step. Justice Hawthorne pronounced the service as Meyers and Sterns threw encouraging and loving glances at the happy couple, who after being united left with profuse thanks directed to the best man and best woman who were holding themselves in, only to turn a back handspring and develop convulsions in their fits of merriment later on.

J. E. McDonald has the only thoroughbred Suffolk Punch dam and colt on the Pacific Coast. The mare is a three-year old and weighs 1,600. The sire, the property of Martin & Blake the Utah stock-breeders, tips the scale at 1,900.

As draft horses, the Suffolks cannot be beaten and Mr. McDonald's animals can be inspected at the race track. They will be entered in the District and State Fair this year, when the horsemen of Nevada will have an opportunity to study them.

The clock in the Government building is not effected by heat or cold, and never varies a fraction of a second. Sometime week before last it came to a sudden standstill and "hasn't done anything since."

The gentlemen from the rural districts glance upward in the course of the day, and the same blank hour stares them in the face constantly. The wags remark that it is a "stop clock," and the taxpaying citizen makes suggestions unfit for publication.

Whose business it is to keep the eyesore in operation the APPEAL is unable to learn, but it certainly is a disgrace to the city and a frightful example of negligence on the part of the Government.

When the contrivance was first put up it kept pretty good time; that is, one or another of the four dials did, and was considered by a few proprietors of hat watches to be pretty accurate—sometimes.

But the first winding seemed to be the ending of its days of toil, and it stopped not long ago with a jerk. Then some good Samaritan poured a pint of oil on the gearing, which succeeded in running down the glass faces and soaking huge greasy blotches on its set countenance.

It seems to this paper that something ought to be done to move the mechanical wonder that the passersby may know ye hour day and night.

Bicycle Races.

The bicycle club clamor for more races this fall. Many of them claim, and with considerable truth, that when a bicycle race is announced, it is found necessary to put on an extra gate-keeper. The State bicycle races at Reno put more gate money into the Association than many horse races. The pool box, which is run on a percentage basis, is always crammed full as the betting men know that bicycle riders always run to win thus making the race one of merit and muscle. The directors can do nothing better than to hang up liberal prizes for the boys and let the crowd of eager spectators flock in at 50c and $1 a head.
